

Easy reptiles for people

So you decided to own your first reptile? It is a very good decision! Now you may have an enormous and difficult question - "Which reptile is right for me?". So let's solve this problem! I divided this big and simple theme into 3 parts. 1st part - easy reptiles for beginners, 2nd part - reptiles for kids and 3rd part - unique easy reptiles.

WARNING: I wrote this paragraph based in onle my opinion and information from YouTube, internet, etc. And I took the idea from Clint's Reptiles, Wickens Wicked Reptiles and Elle's reptile(if someone of you is reading this, thanks for idea))))

Part 1st - Easy Reptiles For Beginners

All next reptiles in this part have 5 common things:

Avialable	 	You can find these reptiles in every pet shop (but I DO NOT recommend buying pets in pet shops).
Affordable	 	They can be "expensive" but their keeping is cheap. Because you can buy 20$ Basilisk and then spend a lot of money to keep him.
Easy to House	 	As I said later, keeping these reptiles isn't expensive, but it needs to be easy to! So keeping them is easy and cheap .
Easy diet	 	This theme is connected with other two: Affordable and Easy to House. Because their diet is cheap, easy and interesting.
Interactive	 	These reptiles are fun and fun to watch, their life is very interesting and it is very exciting to watch them.

First before we started, I warn you that there aren't any reptiles in this part that have a first place or second, because for different people different reptiles are better - or worse. And in this theme I am saying only basic information, so if you choosed a reptile ,please, first search for more detailed information through the internet and YouTube.

Leopard gecko. Leopard geckos are very popular and famous since they were highly domesticated about 1970. It is a very calm animal, no biting,no jumping or fast moves. Leopard geckos can drop their tail, but it is rare and often isn't very good. Because leopard geckos live in desert reliefs and they save fat and useful resources in their tail.
Gargoyle/crested gecko. It is a energycal and fast animal, it can unintentionally bite you but it won't hurt you, they love to jump so don't hold it high from hard surface. And they can drop the tail every moment they want! But unfortunately crested geckos can't regenerate it while gargoyle can. The one difference is that a gargoyle gecko is a little bigger than a crested. But they have a lot of useful similarities: for both of them will be a good 20 gallon(76l) tank and they have similar diet. Both are from New Calezonia - an island where there are a lot of famous geckos. Their terrarium needs to have 50-70% humidity, you need to mist them and they need a bowl of water too.

Bearded dragon. We finished with geckos and we are moving to the next reptiles. Bearded dragons are bigger than reptiles later, but they are adorable and smart! They need a 120 gallon(455l) tank, UVB light and they are more expensive than the other three geckos later. Bearded dragons have a very diverse diet and they don't lose tail. Yes it is way more expensive to keep them, but beardiers have their own personality and it is very exciting.

Corn snake. Now we are going ahead to snakes. Warning: snakes eat rodents, so if you love/hate rodents, snakes aren't for you. They are small snakes for what you need: 40-75 gallons (151l-284l), a bowl of water and small rodents like mice/rats(I repeat if you hate/love rodents snakes aren't for you). It is very fun and exciting to play with snakes and with corn snakes too!

Ball python. Warning: snakes eat rodents, so if you love/hate rodents, snakes aren't for you. They are called ball pythons because they love to roll into a ball! They are way calmer than corn snakes. They are perfect snakes for beginners because they are calm, smart and very beautiful. You need a 40+ gallon (150+ l) tank and of course small rodents as a diet (mice/rats).
